IN THE THICK OF BATTLE. Dodging a Shell and the Work of the Wonderful Mauser Bullet. Desile's Weekly: Most thrilling is the tory of Major General William Duffield Bell, surgeon of the Seventy-first regiment, and a man in the right place, I should say:/

I should say:

The major went on to describe the fight of July I, as he saw it in his work among the wounded and dying.

"We advanced behind E. Company, which formed the rear guard, and almost without warning found ourselves ander fire as a volley came from the woods. This was our first taste of action, and as the men began to drop we pushed forward with the litters, two men in each. The two men I was with picked up: a wounded soldier shot in the knee, and were just starting back with him when one of the men named Waters, he was in the drum corps, was struck with a piece of shell in the hip, and he went down. In a moment another man of the corps had replaced him, and we started back again. Then the second man got a builet in the shoulder, and I took his place carrying.

Bo, we got in the rear.

"When I dressed the wounded soldler's knee I started forward again with two litter-bearers, picked up another wounded soldler, and, then, seeing another one staggering toward me

ov. rhead. "I thought it must surely pass beyond, but it struck a tail tree and ricocheted to the ground, exploding at the very spot where we were standing. As I saw the danger I gave the wounded ann a sharp push forward, throwing him to the ground, also in a forward direction, as I knew that the fragments
of the shell would be driven backward
by the momentum. The explosion by the momentum. The explosion came not ten feet from where we were lying, and we were burled in the dirt hurled violently over us. There was a hole in the ground where the shell struck big enough to set a barrel in, but neither the solder nor I got any hurt. The others about thought this quite a miracle, and came running up, thinking to find us dead. All these details I remember with the utwest distance of the comments of the set of the comments of the comm I remember with the utmost dis-bullet. "La some respects," he said, "the frauser bullet showed itself most metaler bullet showed itself most metalen, small hole, with very little tearing of the lisaues or splintering of the bones. It frequently happened that men shot through the body felt very little inconvenience for some time after, and were able to walk a mile or two to the rear, or even to go on fighting. and were able to walk a mile or two to the rear, or even to go on fighting. Men-walked into the bospital station shot through the bowels, shot through the stomach, shot through the lungs, and many of them recovered. We have had men who were shot through the liver or the kidneys, and that was something unheard of before this way. And, it was remarkable to see how the arteries would recede from before a Mauser bullet, and avoid a rupture. There were many cases where I could put my finger into a wound and feel the artery pulsating, and yet there was no purcture.

"There was cavalryman in the Rough Riders' fight— have this on the author-ity of another doctor—who was shot through the heart in the charge, but did not know it.

"'I'm afraid I'm hurt, lieutenant,' he called out, putting his hand over his Go back to the rear, said the

Not, while I've got any breath in ne to fight, answered the soldler. And it seems an established fact that this man continued in the charge of nearly, 509 'yards before he dropped to the Tround dead.

509 yards before he dropped to the Tround dead.

"What was the effect of the Mauser bullet at short range?"

"It was terrible, for at short range the Mauser bullet explodes; there is no question about this. I do not mean that it explodes like gunpowder, by a hemically just as a grindstone may fly into pieces. You see, during its early flight, the bullet, which is shaped like a long bean, wobbles as a top does, from side to side. Later on it takes a steady, horizontal position, and then makes a clean wound, but if it enters a body while wobbling it mushrooms. If I may so express it, and the projecting fragments work frightful have in bone or tissue. I saw a man in Company C., Sergeant Immen, who was struck in the head carly in the fight. He was right on the firing line, and must have got the bullet before it had taken its steady polae of flight. At any rate the skull looked as if it had been smashed with a hammer, and he died a few hours later."

UNHORSED BYA METFOR

UNHORSED BY A METEOR.

Midnight Adventure in Kentucky with a Bedeviled Fireball.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A huge meteor passed over the western portion of Garrard county, about twelve o'clock Wednesday night, alarming nearly every one who saw it. It came out of the southern heavens, rushing northward at high speed, and exploded among the cliffs of the Kentucky river with a noise like the discharge of a It was apparently about the size of a full moon. Its path was wild and erratic, and unusually close to and erratic, and unusually close to the earth. It seemed literally to bore its way through the air, moving in a spiral, twisting fashion, alternately dipping toward the earth and rising from it, and all the while emitting sparks and sinister hissing sounds as it sped furiously onward. For a minute all that region was brilliantly illumin-ated.

Several persons in Bryantsville, seeing a sudden, bright glare in their rooms, ran out to ascertain the cause of it, but were still further puzzled at inding no explanation, as the light had quickly disappeared. Henry Burdett, of that village, who was hunting in 'Pelly's Bend," and who saw the meteor coming toward him, lashed his horse into a gallop to get out of its way. But he unfortunately headed in the wrong direction. A moment had scarcely clapsed before it passed with a swish and a roar, a short distance wrong direction. A moment had scarcely clapsed before it passed with a swish and a roar, a short distance above his head, causing his horse to plunge so violently that he was thrown headlong from the saddle. He escaped serious injury by falling into a thick patch of broomsedge. Before he had regained his feet, and white still temporarily blinded from the intense light, an explosion reverbated like thunder among the neighboring cliffs.

Burdett says he distinctly felt the heat of the fire ball as it passed over his head. He also heard it sizzle. He didn't recover his horse until some time next day. Only an instant before Burdett's mishap, but at a point some aix miles further; south, sparks from the ball ignited 'a huge strawrick on the crest of, Rickley's Hill, and it was quickly reduced to ashes.

Millard Rout and Dick Moore, residents of Marksburg, who were on their way home from a 'possum hunt, saw the phenomenon, and were considerably frightened by it. They describe it as a sort of gyrating, globular missile of intense brilliancy, which rushed uncertainty across the country in a northerly direction, leaving behind it a vivid, sinuous train. They heard a distinct detonation. Among others in that vicinity who saw it was an old colored man, who galloped excitedly down the Lexington rike, shouting at the top of his voice that the day of judgment and come. These cries aroused Pat O'Connor from deep steep, causing him hurriedly to thrust his head out of a window and scan earth and sky for some moments with apprehensive lacks. Seeing, nothing, he concluded

The path of such a phenomenon is rarely so near to the surface of the earth as this one seems to have been, nor is it often so erratic. It is probable that one or more meteoric rocks were liberated at the time of the explosion, but none has been found, although several parties have been searching for them in a certain locality near the river on the northern border of the county.

Breadstuffs and Provisions.

CHICAGO — The New Year on change commenced with a lot of profit taking by bulls. Declines in all the grain and provision markets resulted.
Wheat lost 1%c, corn %@lc; oats %@ Mc and provisions 5@10e.

Wheat, at the opening, and for a few moments following, showed comparative firmness, though not so much as had been expected from the strong curb markets prevailing since Friday. Opening unchanged at 13%6/13%, a very moderate buying demand move of wheat came outside, and sufficed to advance the price to 72%c. That was the turning noint. Liverpool was only 4d higher. Northwest receipts for the holiday interval were 985 cars, small compared with 2,109 cars last week, but large enough to attract attention. Chicago receipts were 185 cars, ten of contract grade. Paris was reported 55 centimes lower. Argentine crop reports were favorable, although the advices were to the effect that the harvest would be late. There was nothing oppressively bearish in the news, but shortly after the opening it became evident that most of the heavy buil traders were convinced that a reaction was due, and that the ruling prices justified profit taking. There were also the selling of whent by that class of speculators who invariably put out short lines after January 1. Bull news was plentiful later in the session, but in the meantime the selling movement had become general, professional short sellers adding not a little to the weakness the market developed by pounding it vigorously. Before noon a very material decline had taken place. May declined to 71½c, recovered to 71%6 71½c, tunder the usual covering by scalping shorts, then declined steadily to 70%c, reaching that price shortly after noon. Weakness that developed in corn was given a good deal of attention by wheat traders, and affected prices more or less. Expectations in regard to the visible decrease were realized, the final flurres showing a decrease of 1,590,000 bushels. This rather steadled the market after the decline, and resulted in a slight improvement in prices during the last half hour's tradius. Clearace from Atlantic ports for two days were 1,375,000 bushels. May railled to 70%6703c, and close dat that prices.

Corn was active and weak. The feature was the open and for the market and canh demand for reali

Metals.

NEW YORK—Copper advanced 15@25 points, while tin jumped 75 to 100 points with both markets very strong. The balance of the list kept well in the background and showed but narrow changes. Demand for both copper and tin was brisk, but sellers were hard to find and aggregate transactions were hardly in keeping with the big change in quotations. News from primary points and abroad was firm and partially responsible for the strength of the local market. At the close the metal exchange called pig iron warrants firm at $7.75 nominal; lake copper strong and higher with $13.25 bid and $13.50 asked; tin strong and higher, with $19.65 bid and $20.0 asked; lead firm, with $3.90 bid and $2.55 asked; spelter quiet at $3.70 and copper at $12.75 by the firm fixing the settling price for leading miners and smelters at the west.
